Additional REQUIRED Readings will be posted on E-Reserves and on Anthro 201’s Blackboard page.

Requirements: Grades are based on a Midterm Exam, a Final Exam, short papers, group presentations, and additional activities (some of which will involve spending time outside of class in the Anthro Lab). The exams and other assignments will cover material introduced in lecture, in films, and in the readings. You will find details below about how the requirements will weigh in figuring your course grade.

Attendance: I do not keep formal attendance, but I pay attention to who’s in class and who’s not. No pressure, but it’s a practical fact that the class is easier when you show up. Please let me help you come along for the ride.
Class Etiquette: In class, I truly appreciate your arriving on time and participating. In return, I will do my best to keep you focused, interested and involved in the course lectures and other activities. That being said, please don’t do anything that’s impolite or distracting for your classmates. Just to remind y’all of the obvious: TURN OFF YOUR CELL PHONE WHILE IN CLASS.

Disabilities Services: Oxford College provides students with disabilities all reasonable accommodation for participating in educational programs, activities, or services. Students with disabilities requiring accommodation for any activities or requirements in Anthro 201 must register and consult with Emory University’s Office of Disability Services. Please contact Karen Martucci, Director of Academic Services at Oxford College, for further information and assistance. REMINDER: It is your responsibility to provide official documentation of your right to disabilities related accommodation for class participation. We will work out any accommodations that are specific to the course. But we must do so as early in the semester as possible.

Religious Holidays: Your rather agnostic professor has full respect for religious practice and the personal, family, and community obligations that go with it. Please be prepared to share with me if you are going to miss any scheduled class activity due to observance of a religious holiday. And please let me know as soon as possible in the semester if any scheduled exam or other due date conflicts with a religious holiday that you observe. This way, we can make alternative arrangements early!

COURSE GRADES
The professor reserves the right to assign grades according to a curve that reflects the overall performance of the class. However, if everyone in the course performs at an excellent level, then everyone will receive an A.

The exams and assignments will be weighted as follows:

- Two Midterm Exams: 5-25% (sliding scale)
- Final Exam: 20-40% (sliding scale)
- Response Papers/Lab Assignment: 20%
- Group presentation: 10%
- In Class Participation: 10%

The sliding scale for the exam weights means that if you do better on the final, then it will weigh a more, and vice versa for the mid-term.
IMPORTANT: The exams are MANDATORY. A failure to complete any one of these will result in a failing grade for the course.

JUST AS IMPORTANT: Unless you have a valid excuse that you present to me beforehand, all exam and due dates must be strictly adhered to. RARE EXCEPTIONS are granted under the following clear conditions: you have a valid, documented medical or family emergency. If you require special arrangements through Disability Services, or if you otherwise know ahead of time that you have a major schedule conflict, contact the professor as soon as possible to schedule an alternative exam. Be prepared to provide documentation.

Response Papers: You will have 10 response paper assignments. You will be asked to define key terms and answer key questions. These are designed as study notes and guides for participation in discussion. For each assignment you should expect to fill about about 2 pages, single-spaced. To receive full credit, you must print out your assignment in hard copy. (Handwritten assignments will be accepted at a 1/2 point penalty.) I will keep track of participation by collecting your assignments at the end of class on the due date. One full participation point will be deducted from your grade if you are not present in class on the due date or if you e-mail your assignment to me. I will allow up to two exceptions to the participation requirement (to allow for slow printers, illness, or whatever – no excuses required).

Each writing assignment thus contributes 2 total points to your grade. Late assignments will not be accepted.

Further instructions on format and content will be given in class and in handouts on Blackboard.
